

David M'ore puts on a guitar clinic on 'Passion Soul and Fire'

Gary Schwind
Orange County Music Examiner
Subscribe | Follow:

David M'ore / Cold Shot

Cold Shot by David M'ore

Luv4Music

Passion Soul and Fire by David M'ore

The first impression you get from Passion Soul and Fire by David M'ore is in the vocals. M'ore sings in a low growl that is not unlike Tom Waits. Probably a better comparison is James Leg of Black Diamond Heavies.

The album is steeped in classic rock. You can't help but notice that the guitar riff in Johan Sebastian Blues sounds a lot like the guitar in the mad hit "Hocus Pocus" by Focus. Another obvious example is a cover of Deep Purple's "Mistreated", which closes the album. You can't really say that M'ore makes the song his own, but it's still an enjoyable nine minutes of music.

This album is definitely heavy on guitar that - like Robben Ford - straddles the line between classic rock and blues. "You Said You Love Me" is a really good example of M'ore's prowess on the guitar. He does a fair amount of wailing in the 10 minutes of this song. You can also hear some Stevie Ray Vaughan influence in songs like "The 12 Song".

If you're a fan of guitar, you will probably love this album. Passion Soul and Fire is available now on CDBaby.

http://www.examiner.com/review/david-m-ore-puts-on-a-guitar-clinic-on-passion-soul-and-fire?CID=examiner_alerts_article

